Message for the Word Youth Meeting 2019

Professor Teruhiko YOSHIMURA (Ph.D.)
Dean, Faculty of International Welfare Development
Nihon Fukushi University

It gives me great pleasure to make a greeting to you all on the 21st anniversary of the World Youth Meeting. On behalf of Nihon Fukushi University, I would like to warmly welcome all of you who have gathered here from various regions of the world to be part of this event.

For the past years that the World Youth Meeting has been held at our university, we have been able to enjoy the energy of the youth engaging in global/glocal issues through their presentations and interactions. This is truly the result of the hard work and dedication of the university professors and high school teachers who have given a tremendous amount of their time to support the students. Their passion has made it possible for the students and each school to achieve more than they would have on their own.

Currently our faculty, Faculty of International Welfare Development, aims to foster a sense of unity in multi-generations and multi-cultural “Convivial Society”. We can see that “International” is no longer restricted to “overseas” or “English speaking”. Through the development of facilitation and communication skills, adept use of ICT and problem solving skills, our faculty has aimed to equip students able to contribute to building a multi-cultural convivial society for our future. In this context, our university puts an emphasis on Diversity and Inclusion. Dialogue, interaction, and social gathering among people with different background and culture are fundamental factors for our future. We believe that education can contribute to foster the culture of dialogue and mutual understanding.

Witnessing the collaboration between countries, schools and individuals here at the World Youth Meeting gives hope for a future where we can live together in global and local convivial society where each individual feels worth and happiness. We at Nihon Fukushi University, will also strive to continuously support students to become engaged in learning and become leaders to build a better society.

I give my congratulations once again to all the high school and university members as well as all the dedicated supporters and would like to appreciate the many institutions, organizations and individuals, beginning with the Ministry of Education, Culture, Sports, Science and Technology for their continued support.

Thank you once again for being here today and good luck with your presentations.

Message for the World Youth Meeting 2019

KOBATAKE, Toshio
Executive Trustee, The Ritsumeikan Trust

Ladies and gentlemen, teachers, participants and guests, it is a great honor to welcome you on behalf of the Ritsumeikan Trust to the World Youth Meeting 2019. We are very excited to cohost such a prestigious event with Nihon Fukushi University and to accommodate you at Biwako-Kusatsu Campus, Ritsumeikan University. Today we are joined by participants from many nations visiting from all over Japan and Asia, and we at Ritsumeikan feel proud to work with you as we discuss the well-being of people across the globe. Ritsumeikan has long held that the future in any society, whether as small as a family or as large as the international community, is not secure unless all of its members have peace and happiness. Only two months ago another campus, Osaka Ibaraki Campus, was closed so that we could ensure the safety of our community after a large earthquake struck this part of Japan. We know that we have a responsibility to our students and that our students have a responsibility to protect the well-being of their own communities and by extension, the world as a whole. We feel that it is fitting that we now take time to listen to your ideas about what well-being means to us not only today, but for generations to come.

Ritsumeikan was founded on the ideal that education is the path to well-being not only for the learner, but for those who come into contact with him or her. We have always recognized that there is not a single answer to what every human needs or what every person must do in order to feel secure and happy. For these reasons we are happy to learn the viewpoint of our esteemed visitors. As you know, looking at problems through many eyes with new and different experiences can only make our communities better if we view things with an open mind. We here at Ritsumeikan are just as eager to learn from your experiences as we are to share ours with you.

When Ritsumeikan was founded in 1900, Osaka was a large commercial city, but even so, for most people well-being simply meant having enough food to eat. China and India were far-off places that most could only dream of visiting. Today the world is more accessible, but the challenges for you, the leaders of tomorrow, are no less complicated. Greater technology has brought prosperity to some, but too often we have sought our own well-being at the expense of others. We know that our international community can never truly be secure, can not truly prosper, until all us are given a chance to truly achieve health and happiness for ourselves and our communities. We ask you to help us learn from your vision of the future, from your dreams and from your belief that humanity will always use its better nature when given the chance. We are proud and honored that we at Ritsumeikan can in some small way contribute to your discussions and be a part of your success because your success means the well-being of all of us. This is what our founders Prince Kinmochi Saionji and Kojuro Nakagawa believed in when Ritsumeikan began and you are helping us to come closer to making their ideas a reality. Thank you for your attention and your enthusiasm.

Seeking the Way and How to Meet Their Potential

Makoto Kageto Ph.D.

WYM steering Committee Chair

As courses of study have been drastically improving, we expect the arrival of Society 5.0. The keywords of the new educational trend based on ICT utilization are self-directed learning, learner-centered, and interactive-learning. Furthermore, constructivism contributes to this educational trend by encouraging learners to construct their own meaning rather than passively receiving their knowledge.

Students can further their learning through participation in this International Collaborative Project named the World Youth Meeting. They learn to make connections between different ideas, different cultures, and different areas of knowledge. The W.Y.M. is an authentic stage where students are active in making tangible objects, collaborative presentations, in a real-world setting.

Judging from the data of how many students have joined in the W.Y.M., the number has risen to more than 11,000 students, one can say it has been successful. Participants have all challenged themselves in making collaborative presentations, and now some are even studying abroad making use of their W.Y.M. experiences.

The W.Y.M. is the place to collaborate with overseas friends overcoming conflict caused by different ways of communication.

to learn to cope appropriately with international issues.

to learn how to design an English Presentation effectively while acquiring forerunners' good presentations.

to challenge issues related to world peace, climate change, and immigration policy.

to break through insularism.

to motivate them through this authentic event to content with 'real world' tasks and issues.

The W.Y.M. teaches us that we can no longer say our lives don't interact with others. Our lives are now affecting each other. Asian students surely will need presentation skills so that they can clearly communicate their ideas and opinions to help to make the world a better place for us all to share. The W.Y.M. is not merely an event, it is a new international learning environment for both students and teachers. They are seeking a way to meet their potential. Authentic settings are a compelling way when they give participants an opportunity to challenge new goals such as making collaborative presentations with students from different cultures.
